

Dallin Cooper is an author, speaker, entrepreneur, and ethicist. From raising sheep in Wyoming to working in a bookstore in northern China to founding his own marketing agency, Dallin's many unique experiences have given him the tools to empower people and organizations of all types. His engaging stories help the powerful insights he shares stick in your mind, so long after the event has ended, you'll still feel the impact of the lessons shared and problems solved.

---

Dallin Cooper has owned and operated businesses of all sizes for nearly a decade. As a skilled teacher of the principles of ethical leadership that led to the success of his own businesses, Dallin is the perfect speaker for any business group, association, or organization looking to develop a culture of trust. Ethics generally gets a reputation of being a boring and stuffy topic. Dallin strives to subvert that reputation by crafting speeches and trainings that don't feel like "ethics training." Instead, they're inspiring, uplifting, educational, and motivating.

---

Dallin Cooper has worn a variety of hats throughout his life. He founded a marketing agency and a sustainable dog chew brand. He has also been a shepherd and rehabilitated two rescue alpacas. He now is an author and speaker who uses vibrant stories to uplift, motivate, and educate about ethics, leadership, and trust.